

Rugby.
11. IX. 17.

Dear Sir -

You were kind enough to answer me before: I trust you will pardon
my bothering you again.

I am writing
a book for use in Schools in the writing & teaching of English.
I had intended to include a passage from "Principles of Social Reconstruction"
(p 165.) which I have used to illustrate "form".
We have played with the passage & pulled

it to pieces and
reconstructed it.
My excuse must be
that to get boys to think one must be
"destructive and indifferent to authority."

I enclose one of our reconstructions: I should like to be allowed to add it
by the side of the original: and if I may do so, it would help us if you could kindly
say in what way
our reconstruction

fails to express your meaning. We have studied your passage with the passage in
"Charit" which we tried to reconstruct
with lamentable
results! In a weak moment I promised my boys
to ask you to let us know what you think of our impudence.

Yours truly
W. O. Brigstocke
