Dear Mr Russell

Thank you for your letter & your testimonial. It has just come in time. It was very kind of you to write under the circumstances.

The Oxford Congress was a success, though dull. Many of the speakers were very bad & we had far too much Bryson. The weather was perfect - Oxford on a fine September day or moonlit night is something worth going to even with a congress added.

If the Chinese want a philosopher whose only qualifications ~~are~~ a strong desire to get out of England and in somewhere else, will you please tell them to send for me? I find it difficult to imagine myself ever making a decent living here without being a humbug: it takes a big man to defy public opinion; but I think there may be places in the world where my unorthodoxy might be an asset.

Thank you again for your kindness.

Yours sincerely

W. O. Brigstocke
